

Hate Crimes and Noncriminal Hate Violence - On-campus statistics, 2020

Incidents denoted with an “*” in the tables below were determined to meet the definition of “hate crime” as defined by CA Penal Code 422.55 or “hate violence” as defined by CA Education Code 67380. The State of California has not defined “Non-criminal Hate Violence”. The definition of non-criminal hate violence for purposes of this report includes non-criminal conduct that is motivated by hatred or bigotry and directed at any individual, residence, house of worship, institution, or business expressly because of the victim's real or perceived race, nationality, religion, sexual orientation, gender, or disability. Hate incidents also include conduct directed against an individual or group because of their association or advocacy on behalf of a member or members of a protected class. A hate incident might include hate speech, display of offensive materials on one's property, the distribution of hate materials in public places and the posting of hate materials that does not result in property damage. The freedoms guaranteed by the U.S. constitution, such as the freedom of speech, permit hateful rhetoric as long as it does not interfere with the civil rights of others. Incidents reported to university officials as Acts of Intolerance (reported in 2021 as Protected Identity Harm incidents) were included in this report as being incidents of Non-criminal Hate Violence unless there was sufficient information to determine the act constituted a hate crime or an incident of hate violence.

Additionally, in an effort to provide safety information to the community, this report includes incidents that could not be determined to have occurred on campus, including incidents in virtual meeting spaces or social media forums for which there are no details in the reports that the materials in question were received by a person located in Stanford's Clery Act geography. These additional reports are counted once, since the incident impacted unknown numbers of individuals, and they are denoted in the table with a “#”. Acts of Intolerance reports that do not demonstrate bias against a protected class and incidents known to have occurred outside of campus geography are not included.

The Education Code requires that a description be included for the category of bias as well as victim and suspect characteristics, if known. Recognizing that there is a broad spectrum of gender identities and other elements of identity, attributed victim and offender characteristics are based on the information provided by reporting parties. Other information may be included for a better understanding of statistics.
