Hate Crimes (2015-2017)

2015- There were two hate crimes reported in 2015. One incident of vandalism with a religious bias occurred in which swastikas were spray-painted on walls of an on-campus fraternity that has members of the Jewish faith. The second hate crime involved an individual riding his bike through a group playing mini golf on campus. One of the group raised his golf club as if to hit the cyclist while using a homophobic slur, which is categorized as an attempted simple assault based on sexual orientation.

2016 - There were eight hate crimes reported in 2016. Five of those cases were vandalism incidents based on religion in which swastikas were painted on signs in various locations on campus.³⁹ There was another vandalism case in which a racial epithet was marked on a restroom mirror. There was one reported case of a threat of physical violence that targeted an individual based on perceived sexual orientation. There was one reported battery targeting an individual based on race.

2017 - There were 22 hate crimes reported in 2017. All 22 cases were vandalism incidents based on religion in which swastikas were painted on signs or surfaces in various locations on campus; eight locations were counted as student residences.

Unfounded Crimes (2015-2017)

As noted in the above table, there were three unfounded burglaries, four unfounded auto thefts, and one unfounded fondling in 2015. All three burglaries were unfounded after property originally reported as missing was later located by the reporting parties. See definition on page 80.

Three of the four unfounded auto thefts involved employees using a golf cart for work purposes without properly signing them out. The final unfounded auto theft involved an individual who forgot where they parked their vehicle. These reports were subsequently unfounded by the police.

An alleged report of fondling was received by a CSA via an email survey. When the alleged victim was contacted, the victim was unaware of the survey and stated that someone else must have entered the victim's personal information and the narrative of the alleged fondling. The report was subsequently unfounded by the police.

As noted in the above table, there was one unfounded burglary in 2016. The property reported burglarized was later found inside the residence.

In 2017, there was one burglary unfounded; the item reported stolen from the residence had been misplaced by the owner.

³⁹ During the annual statistical review, two swastika cases were found unreported in the 2016 ASR, updating the previously published total of three swastika cases to five.
